A1/34

1. VISION

To create a safe, secure and orderly environment for all people in Overstrand

2. MISSION

To secure the creation and maintenance of professional public safety service through:

- 2.1 Optimal utilisation and management of staff
- 2.2 Optimal development and utilization of partnerships
- 2.3 Effective training of staff and community

3. INTRODUCTION

3.1 Performance Environment

3.1.1 Analysis of Crime

All of the prioritized, serious crimes are not equally influenced and cannot be reduced to the same extent by conventional policing by the SAPS. The reduction target implemented by Government was never intended to be solely a SAPS or even overall policing reduction target. The intention was that this national target towards normalisation of crime should be a South African effort involving the Criminal Justice System, SAPS, all other relevant Government Departments, Non-governmental Organisations and the citizens themselves.

3.1.2 Community participation in Fighting crime

There has, since the inception of a democratic dispensation in South Africa, been continuous robust debate on the levels of crime and the success of Government in addressing it. An important outcome of this debate on crime and what should be done to address it has been the need for continuous constructive involvement of all communities in the activities of the SAPS and Government as a whole in combating crime. The expectation that the SAPS eradicate crime in the country without such active involvement is unrealistic. Several platforms exist for such community involvement, the majority of which have been initiated by the SAPS, including the Community Policing Forums (CPF's), the Crime Stoppers reporting line, the recently established Crime Line, the Police Reservists and various community based crime prevention initiatives such as the Youth Crime Prevention Capacity-building Programmes, the Anti-rape strategy and Local Crime Prevention Development programmes. The challenge is to develop a sustained and systematic response, and to build a sustainable partnership between the Police and the community that makes it possible.

3.1.3 Crime intelligence

Crime intelligence contributes to the prevention and investigation of crime by identifying crime prone areas and suspects and by conducting intelligence driven operations. Crime intelligence operates at various levels within the SAPS as well as other disciplines. Crime intelligence provides key informational support function to all operational environments. It is therefore imperative that this function has the capacity to effectively support the pro-active and reactive informational needs other than the SAPS key operational functions. It has been prioritised by Government for accelerated capacitating as key components of the fight against crime.

3.1.4 Budget and Resource management

The budgeting of new police stations, the renovation of existing ones and the provision and accommodation in accordance with determined needs, will be prioritised and fast-tracked in line with the operational priorities and objectives of the SAPS. Requests from Police Management need to be submitted to Public Works for new police stations in needs driven areas. Requests for an operational budget in the peak seasons need to be submitted timeously and events should be communicated in time. A policy must be put in place to ensure that all major events are planned and planning submitted to relevant role players before the end of June each year. All applications for other events must be submitted to the role players at least 21 days in advance. Representation from the various areas regarding seasonal needs need to be considered during planning of the budget.

5 MORAL DECLINE

- 5.1 The patience of our countrymen is running low and sooner rather than later urgent steps will have to be considered whether an injunction in the Constitutional Court ought to be brought against the National and Regional Legislators if there is speedy action in providing and environment in which all our mothers, daughters, the old and the infirm would feel safe to walk. The unpalatable truth is that when an anti-social act is being committed, it is not only due to an inherent vice, hereditary factors or biological problems but also due to a faulty upbringing and an undesirable environment. There cannot be equality of opportunity if there is inequality of environment. A child's environment will dictate whether that child will develop into an infant barbarian or a reasonably civilized adult.
- 5.2 Failure to embrace the law
The expansion of Police, Traffic and Law Enforcement Services, Correctional Facilities, Public Prosecutors, the restructuring of our Courts and the meeting out of severe punishments, together with the resolve to stamp out anti-social criminal activities, will not by itself eliminate crime unless the vicious cycle of poverty, unemployment, continual retrenchments, ignorance and squalor, which thousands of our citizens in the dawn of a new era are still suffering from, are broken.
- 5.3 The criminal Justice system that is unable to handle the workload and are not informed of municipal legislation.
- 5.4 Negligent, incompetent and unmotivated law enforcement personnel.
- 5.5 A very general sense of entitlement – i.e. "you have a car/ cell phone/ wallet/ laptop and I want it, so I will take it".

6.4 The four pillar approach to crime prevention

The Government has adopted the four pillar approach as a model which sets out the different areas in which crime prevention should be developed:

6.4.1 Pillar 1: The Criminal Justice System

its aim is to make the criminal justice system more efficient and effective. It must provide a sure and clear deterrent for criminals and reduce the risks of re-offending.

6.4.2 Pillar 2: Reducing crime through environmental design

It focuses on designing systems to reduce the opportunity for crime and increase the ease of detection and identification of criminals.

6.4.3 Pillar 3: Public Values and education

It is a concern initiative aimed at changing the way communities react to crime and violence. It involves programmes which utilize public education and information in facilitating meaningful citizen participation in crime prevention.

6.4.4 Pillar 4: Trans-national crime programmes

It is aimed at improving the controls over cross border traffic related to crime and reducing the influx of refugees which are linked to international crime syndicates.

7.4 Crime generators for Overstrand

During the 2016/2017 financial year the following crime generators were detected as being a major factor for the crimes occurring in the Overstrand area:

7.4.1 Negligence at the part of the owners/complainants

This is mainly due to:

- a. Owners neglecting to lock their doors and close their windows
- b. Property left in sight of criminals in vehicles and outside dwellings

7.4.2 Alcohol / Drug abuse

It is commonly known that alcohol and drugs play a major role in some of the assaults and sexual crimes. Drug abuse also plays a major role in property crimes since most criminals committing these crimes are addicted to drugs and turn to crime to sustain their addiction.

7.4.3 Inability to deal with conflict situations

In many cases the public tends to turn more to violent methods in order to deal with conflict situations. It appears to be easier to attack rather than to solve the problem by negotiations or retreat.

7.4.4 Informal businesses

Somalian and other foreigners that are running shops from their residences are targets for robberies and other crimes. These shops have mushroomed in Zwelible and other townships in the area. Owners of RDP properties are renting to foreign nationals. These shop owners have disregard to the laws of the country. They keep their shops open until late at night and keep their profit money with them as they do not use bank facilities. This creates easy targets for armed robbery.

7.4.5 Illegal structures for businesses

Owners of RDP properties erect structures to their homes which they rent out for or use themselves for shebeens and spaza shops or for accommodation. This is done to gain financial income as the unemployment rate in poverty stricken townships is very high.

7.6 Youth as perpetrators of crime

According to the Overberg District Wide Safety Strategy dated June 2011, Mainstream literature supports this contention to a large degree. A young person's decision to become involved in crime is rooted within a diverse array of individual, family, social and environmental factors. See table below:

Risk Factors

Broad area	Specific risk factors
Individual	Aggressiveness, early onset of violent and impulsive behavior, beliefs and attitude favorable to deviant behavior, being male, engaging in anti-social acts such as substance abuse and stealing.
Family or home factors	An economically stressed family, child abuse and neglect, lack of parental interaction, poor parental supervision, single parent families, parents using alcohol and/or drugs, negative relationships with parents, exposure to high levels of family violence and conflict, delinquent or criminal behavior by siblings, harsh or inconsistent disciplinary practices, parental criminality.
School factors	Lack of education, poor academic performance, school failure, truancy, problems at school, poor schooling, low bonding to the school, disruptive behavior at school and bullying.
Community factors	Poverty, neighborhood with high levels of crime, employment, availability of drugs and firearms, gang activity, lack of access to recreational opportunities and facilities, poor housing, neighborhood adults involved in crime, exposure to community violence, and a lack of job opportunities.
Extra-family relationships	Associations with deviant peers and gangs, lack of suitable role models.

- 7.6.1 No single risk factor causes young people to engage in criminal activity. Instead, most professionals agree that multiple factors coalesce to contribute to and shape criminal behaviour over time¹. Furthermore studies have shown that risk factors have additive effects. In other words, the more risk factors a person is exposed to, the greater the likelihood that he or she will become involved in delinquent or criminal behaviour.² Even though, these influencing factors may heighten the susceptibility of youth to deviant and antisocial behaviour, they do not inevitably lead to such behaviour³. Some young people have been found to be risk factors.
- 7.6.2 Much of the literature identifies an array of skills, attributes, or abilities that resilient young people are believed to possess. On the whole, resilient youth are presumed to be autonomous, self-confident, affectionate, resourceful, sociable, optimistic about their future, and empathetic towards others. These young people interact positively with their peers and adults, are able to resolve conflicts, engage in recreational activities, and have a strong commitment to learning. Their home environments are typically characterized by supportive and affectionate parents or caregivers who closely supervise and regulate where and how their children spend their time.
- 7.6.3 Research has shown that if these protective factors are present in an individual's life, he or she is believed to be less likely to engage in criminal activities.⁴ It needs to be borne in mind that just as the presence of risk factors do not inevitably lead to youth offending, protective factors also do not guarantee that young people will refrain from committing crimes since these factors merely reduce the possibility of becoming involved in criminal activity. Nevertheless, interventions aimed at building resilience amongst youth (the primary perpetrators of crime in the District) will go a long way in reducing the levels of crime occurring in these municipalities, and in so doing, enhance safety in these municipalities.
- 7.6.4 Any intervention or approach that hopes to successfully address the scourge of crime and violence in municipalities and communities needs to be mindful of the cycle of crime and violence.
